INSTRUCTOR/S	Arthur Tangara Jr (PhD Cand)
CLASSROOM	SOM-302	SECTION	F 1	SCHEDULE	M-TH 1530-1700

2. COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course explores the making of the contemporary world from an interdisciplinary social sciences perspective, seeking a comprehensive and critical understanding of modernity and its diverse aspects. It examines the historical and social transformations that have shaped the contemporary world and evaluates their effects on social actors, structures, spaces, ideas and institutions. This course also studies the processes that have brought about an increasing consciousness of the interconnections and interrelationships of local peoples and spaces around the globe, as well as the dilemmas brought about by such changes and the responses to them. The theoretical perspectives and approaches emphasize the interfaces between local and global realities, situating the Philippines and its contemporary challenges amidst these complex processes. Topics may include processes of state formation, social revolution, migration, colonialism/decolonization, nation-building and development. The theoretical perspectives and approaches emphasize the interfaces between local and global realities, situating the Philippines and its contemporary challenges amidst these complex processes.

MODULE 2. MODERNITY EMERGING AND RISING This module traces the origins of modernity. It zeroes in on the Enlightenment Period, a vibrant episode that provided impetus for social transformations around the world. It juxtaposes this period with what is loosely defined "premodernity" in order to highlight changes. This module also highlights different aspects and manifestations of modernity especially during the era of industrialization and colonization.

MODULE 5. PARALLEL MODERNITIES – Week 12-13 This module addresses the common fallacy of seeing social transformations in a straight line and at the same time assesses modernity from attempts to implicate it in the discontents of the contemporary world. Correcting the mistaken notion of only one form of modernity, it consolidates and assesses modernity in non-Western and non-central societies. It likewise introduces a progressive critique of modernity and restores the legitimacy of certain modern norms. It particularly focuses on the experiences, narratives, and perspectives of individuals and communities.
1. Non-Western, non-centric modernity Required reading: Chassagne, Natasha. 2019. 7. Grading System

Grade	Score	Description
A	92 – 100	Superior understanding of the subject
B+	87 – 91	Above average but below superior performance
B	83 – 86	Above average performance
C+	79 – 82	Above satisfactory performance
C	75 – 78	Satisfactory performance
D	70 – 74	Passes the minimum requirement of the course
F	Below 70	Failure
WP		Withdraw from a subject with permission
INC		Incomplete (temporary grade)
W		Withdrawal from subject without permission; overcut

 For detailed qualitative explanation of the grading system, please refer to the Ateneo LS Undergraduate Handbook 2016 Edition. In the pre-pandemic on-site class setting, students received a grade of W (Withdrawal without Permission) if their absences exceeded 20% of the total number of class hours in an academic term (2021 Revised LS Undergraduate Academic Regulations, Section III, 1.2, 2.2 and Section V 1.2; 2019 Graduate Student Handbook, Section III.B.6). In an online setting, students are expected to participate in all course activities, both synchronous and asynchronous. Unstable or irregular internet access and other issues may prevent students from attending synchronous sessions; hence, a W cannot be given on the sole basis of attendance. The essence of the W grade, however, as measuring a student's minimum commitment to a course, should be upheld. A student who fails to effectively commit to the class through submission of requirements may be deemed to have dropped the course. For undergraduate online classes, students will receive the grade of W (Withdrawal without Permission) if the highest possible total % weight, as indicated in the syllabus, of requirements they have fulfilled is less than 33.33% by the end of the academic term. If the highest possible total % weight of the requirements fulfilled is greater than or equal to 33.33% by the end of the academic term, the appropriate letter grade should be issued. Final grades are to be computed on the basis of 100% of course requirements as indicated in the syllabus.

8. Class Policies

- a. You are highly encouraged to avail of the consultation session every Friday, 1:00PM to 2:00PM. For any concerns you may have in class.
